CALL FOR PAPERS

Theme: "Sustainable Communities through Education, Research and Innovation"

As rapid urbanization poses threats on our living environment and increases concerns on public health, the Center for Policy, Research and Development Studies will hold its 4th Recoletos (International) Research Congress on March 2-4, 2020 at the University of San Jose-Recoletos Basak Campus, that centers on the theme "Sustainable Communities through Education, Research and Innovation". Inspired by the Augustinian Recollect life and mission for 2016-2022, "Creators of Communion," this year's conference focuses on showcasing products of research and scientific inquiry that can give the impetus to achieving sustainable communities. A sustainable community ensures a healthy environment, a strong economy and the well-being of the people living in the community. Conceived in 2016, the annual Recoletos Research Congress has been an important venue, especially among members of the Recollect education community, to share interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary research perspectives that have a societal and global impact. For this year, the congress aims at rethinking the way we build, manage, and live in our communities that can spur holistic and sustainable development, through forging cooperation among various sectors and stakeholders in our society.

Topics/Tracks: This year's conference will be anchored on the Elements of a Sustainable Community (ISC, 1995) which has four major domains with the following subdomains:
